31. Specht House,
5572 Dyke Street

John Schroeder's daughter, Louise, was married to Herman Specht, who after being a watchmaker in Chicago made and sold patent liniment. This brick home had a belvedere at one time and has featured for many years the fountain graced with a large statue of a classical woman that was acquired from the 1893 World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago. The residence more recently has been occupied by members of the Norma Sikkema family.
