I mainly like the focus on code maintenance and the fact that we have to read source code of actual industry code is helpful.

The emphasis on homework over exams is something that more CS classes should strongly follow.

Student 7

Going to Office hours helps a lot.

also enjoy how the course connects to other areas of the field -- connections are constantly made to theory, security, web, operating systems, compilers, etc, as well as the real world and applications in industry. Getting a chance to work with a variety of programming languages and use more software (e.g. coverage programs) has been useful as well.

The homeworks, while setup can be a challenge, are very illuminating of actually usable information.

Student 24

The lectures are wonderful, best lectures I've had at UM

Student 25

The lecture is exciting and engaging and I am actually learning a lot because I want to attend and pay attention. I also love the tidbits of knowledge thrown in with the trivia and psychology, I would love to see more of that!
