The animation opens up with a hand reaching out to a stack of post-it notes. The hand pulls off a note, crumples it up and then drops it onto the floor. The crumpled post-it then takes on a mind of its own – it rolls across the floor, proceeding to unfold and flatten itself out. It then slowly folds itself into the form of an airplane, gliding across the floor and up the leg of a nearby TV stand, launching into the air. The plane then glides to the ground and is stepped on by a shoe. However, upon closer inspection, the plane is not crushed, but has rather smoothed itself into its original form and is stuck to the bottom of the shoe.